KeyMacro is a command line utility that allows you to customize the behavior of keyboard shortcuts with the help of scripts. This means that you can execute any script code to change keyboard shortcuts on the fly without exiting the application or rebooting the system. Let's see how it works KeyMacro is not a normal 'find and replace' utility, instead, it acts as an interpreter, letting you use your own macro commands. To do so, you just need to select the command you want to execute on the left pane, and the shortcut you want to replace on the right pane. Select the macro you want to use and copy it by clicking the 'copy' button. The script will now appear on the left pane, and you just need to double-click on it to execute. This brings up a dialog box with the application's output, with the original command, the script code, and the edited command. Creating a macro is easy. The only requirement is to have the script code in a standard text format (or in a CSV format), as shown below. You can even modify this format, allowing you to specify the location of each command in the folder, along with other settings. If you need to change the format and the settings, you can always create a macro by hand. KeyMacro will only run macros already created with this format. Application features Create a macro Select the command you want to execute Select the shortcut you want to replace Copy the macro code Select a script code Click the 'Start' button The script will be executed as if you pressed the shortcut Evaluate the script code Double-click the code The application will display the code and the original command Select and copy Select the code Double-click to edit Click the 'Start' button The script is evaluated and the edited command is displayed in the text box Macro features Save macros Save the configuration Auto-load macros Save custom macros Add macros Remove macros Use macros Edit macros Manage macros Enable/Disable all macros Manage all macros Add external scripts Edit external scripts Save/Load external scripts Create new scripts Create new macro commands Edit scripts Macro shortcuts Create shortcut keys Create new shortcuts Modify shortcut keys Modify shortcut keys Create scripts Macro shortcuts Shortcut keys 77a5ca646e
